

Spam Case Report: hijacked realty@frasertradex.ca

Strategic Crypto Reserve · prepared 11 October 2026 · support@kevinkatovic.com

SUMMARY

On 11 October 2026 at 15:55 (Pacific) our mail server delivered an unsolicited sexual romance-bait message to support@kevinkatovic.com from "Maryna" <realty@frasertradex.ca>. The mailbox belongs to a Canadian realty business and has been hijacked: it was logged into with its password from a Vodafone Spain connection (31.4.241.184) and the message was relayed by the business's web host, RPM Cloud / RealPageMaker, on an Amazon EC2 server (18.214.179.239). Replies were to go to a drop box, close104@outlook.com.

NATURE OF THE MATERIAL

This is not ordinary spam. It is unsolicited, sexually explicit, degrading and predatory material (fake "single girl" / "private video" / "F*partner" sex lures and romance-bait), sent with no consent, to a business mailbox, with the obvious aim of luring the reader into fraud. Its content is disgusting and it is entirely unwelcome. It is also not a one-off: as the evidence below shows, the same people have been sending it repeatedly, for months, rotating through hijacked accounts every time one is shut down.

RECURRENCE

The same hijacked mailbox, from the same server, already sent to us on 4 October 2026 (our id 1xDK80-000000006Hw-3hQC; rejected as spam, score 12.7). 11 October is the second attempt in one week, and this time it got through.

The wording "I will reply to You my photo" is a long-running template: our archive holds 145 messages with it from 130 different senders between 29 January 2024 and 25 September 2026, nearly always pointing to a new @outlook.com drop box. The link between those messages and this mailbox is the matching template, not a shared address; the 4 and 11 October messages are a confirmed direct link.
